a. Urban Waters Federal Partnership Work Plan Update, Pauline Louie

The Los Angeles River Watershed Urban Waters Federal Partnership supports local watershed revitalization efforts, improving water quality through green infrastructure, enabling safe public access, and restoring ecosystems. The federal partners work with the City, other interested municipalities, California State agencies, and local nonprofits.

b. LA River Urban Agriculture Plan, Jennifer Samson, LA River Revitalization Corporation, in partnership with Leigh Christy, Perkins + Will, and Miguel Luna, Dake+Luna

The Urban Agriculture Plan was conceived as a means to investigate and envision the opportunities available to create a healthy, sustainable LA River neighborhood through the lens of urban agriculture. It identifies specific strategies, locates potential interventions, and suggests means of project implementation. The plan identifies multiple private and public projects within the Cornfield Arroyo Seco Specific Plan (CASP) that have the potential to be both supportive of community needs and attractive to green developers. The study area consists of 660-acres and coincides directly with the extents of the CASP.

c. LA River Forecasting, Yuval Bar-Zemer, Arts District Community Council LA and Mark Hanna, Geoyntec

This pilot will develop a monitoring network to provide real-time data collection, monitoring, analyses, and reporting of conditions in the Los Angeles River. The Pilot will demonstrate how the system will operate gates at entry points, provide notification to all relevant government agencies as well as provide access to interested members of the public that want to know if they can use the in-channel bike path. Based on real-time data collected during the pilot implementation, a complete roll-out plan could then be efficiently developed for coverage of the entire LA River watershed.

January 2, 2015 6 Comments HIGHLAND PARK
By NATHAN SOLIS

HIGHLAND PARK — The Twitter handle HLP90042 meant plenty to residents of Highland Park. The Twitter account was their update to police activity; store openings and closings; local politics, cuisine, culture; band performances and gallery shows. Which is why it was a rude awakening for the 5,966 followers of HLP90042 when they discovered today that the account had been deleted. The author of the account, Waltarrrrr, who also once authored the 90042 blog, re-tweeted almost every mention of Highland Park on Twitter, either good or bad, giving his feed a colorful palette of people venting, loving and all around living their lives in Northeast L.A. It was no surprise then that followers of HLP90042 expressed their disappointment on Twitter:
the new YORK BLVD @TheNewYorkBlvd
Saddens me to see a person with such love as well as knowledge of our community to leave Twitter so abruptly. @HLP90042 You'll be missed
10:14 AM - 2 Jan 2015

Avi Glijansky @ag457
Bummed to discover @HLP90042 has left the twitterverse. 1 of the great resources for learning about my new neighborhood, you'll be missed.
8:28 AM - 2 Jan 2015

Annette Duran @AnnetteSintia
@HLP90042 :(
11:58 PM - 1 Jan 2015

Back in 2011 the 90042 blog went into hiatus, but Waltarrrrr made occasional updates throughout the years on the history of Highland Park and on local issues ranging from transportation politics to addressing the issue of calling the Arroyo Seco Parkway a freeway. All content from the blog has since been deleted, along with any other mention of the author's presence online. Why did HLP90042 sign off so abruptly? Will the Highland Park updates appear under a different Twitter account? Did HLP90042 offend the North Koreans? HLP90042 did not say much before shutting down. The @walkeaglerock Twitter feed posted some of HLP90042's last updates, including one that said "Call it a New Year's Resolution or an offline evolution. Either way, this is the end."

Waltarrrrr will be sorely missed and we hope that whatever he gets into next he will bring the same level of commitment and enthusiasm he shared with HLP.

CON/SAFOS
at the Bowtie
RAFA ESPARZA with SELF HELP GRAPHICS & ART
February - December 2015

Participating Artists include Sarah Dougherty, Timo Fahler, Juan Manuel Guidiño, Iris Hu, Leo Limon, and the Maricon Collective.

C/S or Con/Safos by Rafa Esparza in collaboration with Self Help Graphics & Art is a site-specific sculpture and year long revolving installation at the Bowtie Project. Over the summer of 2014 Esparza and his father handmade 1500 adobe bricks on site as part of Esparza's Bowtie Project performance 'building. a simulacrum of power'. In a continued exploration of this site, Esparza will use these bricks to build 2 intersecting adobe walls that will be sealed, primed and prepped for painting. Throughout the course of a year local graffiti artists, painters and sculptors will be invited to design, paint, and build onto the surface of Con/Safos. This work will provide an open sanctioned space for painters and graffiti artists to create temporal artworks.

Esparza is partnering with Self Help Graphics & Art, a popular and vital community resource for the creation and presentation of Chicano/Mexicano art and culture in East LA to create this work. They will invite each participating artists to partake in their Atelier Program where they will print a limited edition serigraphic print inspired by their work at C/S. SHGA will also be conducting onsite experiments creating dyes from native plants to use in printing, thus producing their first ever site-specific edition and infusing each print with the feeling and life of the LA river.

Chale Con Cedillo Protest Ride
Sunday, Jan. 4 at 8:00am

Flying Pigeon Los Angeles

3404 N Figueroa St, Los Angeles, California 90065

On Tuesday, December 16th, council member Gil Cedillo (#RoadKillGil) stood before the entire city council and said cyclist represent the 1% and that they are bullying the other 99%.

NELA cyclists, Fig4All, and ESBC say Chale Con Cedillo. We are not bullies, we are cyclist that are engaging our elected officials in order to create safer streets. Cedillo calling us bullies is a clear example of how he DOES NOT serve the public and has no respect for L.A.'s cycling community.

Meet up at 8am at Flying Pigeon Los Angeles

Roll at 8:30am to bring our voice, bikes, bells, horns, rotten eggs, and signs directly to Gil Cedillo's doorstep.
